OUR 30TH YEAR OF INSPIRING CONNECTIONS

2018 ANNUAL REPORT
To Our D&L Community,

Our humble beginning as a government-funded public commission originated with the passionate concern of a handful of individuals. Over the years, we have evolved into a 501(c)(3) charitable organization, remaining ever-focused on preserving the historical and natural significance of our five-county corridor.

As a true non-profit, the Delaware and Lehigh National Heritage Corridor relies on the support of the public and private sectors. With their help, the Corridor generates over $450 million in annual economic impact. We share our region’s history with tens of thousands of children and adults each year. And we work tirelessly to complete the D&L Trail, which grows nearer and nearer to its 165-mile target.

In 2018, we celebrated our 30th anniversary and highlighted this progress with our Founder’s Day event in June. We recognized and expressed our appreciation for the multitude of people who truly form the backbone of the D&L.

Our successes in the past have shown us, without a doubt, that cooperation is the key to fulfilling our mission. Through expanding and deepening our relationships and partnerships in the coming years, we can reach even more people with our life-changing programs and services up and down the Corridor.

What was 30 years ago a small group of caring individuals has become a broad and influential network of enthusiastic and generous donors, members, volunteers, partners and elected and appointed officials. Thanks to people like you, that original passion has been amplified many times over.

See you on the trail!

Michael Drabenstott, Chair
Environmental Partnership Award at Northeast PA Environmental Partners Awards Dinner

The Northeast Pennsylvania Environmental Partners awarded the 2018 Environmental Partnership Award to the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor during its 28th Annual Dinner and Awards on Oct. 25 at the Woodlands Inn and Resort in Wilkes-Barre.

UNIQUE PARTNERSHIPS & STRONG RELATIONSHIPS

“The Delaware and Lehigh National Heritage Corridor was chosen for their ability to form strong partnerships with local entities to not only complete the 165-mile D&L Trail, but also to create a regional network of interconnected multi-use trails in the Lehigh Valley,” said Davitt Woodwell of PEC. “The D&L has built relationships with organizations in five counties and over fifty municipalities to connect the D&L Trail and preserve the heritage of the region. Their ability to form and maintain unique partnerships is what allows for increased support for complicated projects.”

“We couldn’t be more pleased,” said Elissa Garofalo, Executive Director of the Delaware and Lehigh National Heritage Corridor. “We take great pride in our ability to inspire connections and build unique partnerships. And we were honored to be nominated by a long-time partner we admire, the Wildlands Conservancy.”

ABOUT THE NORTHEAST PENNSYLVANIA ENVIRONMENTAL PARTNERSHIP

Michael Drobenstott, Chairman of the Board, and Elissa Garofalo, Executive Director, (pictured at right) accept the Environmental Partnership Award on behalf of the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor.
Linda Kempf, formerly of Bethlehem, returns each year to the Slatington part of the D&L Trail with her daughter Becky to participate in this autumn half marathon because the event has so inspired her life physically and emotionally.

Kempf walked her first half marathon in 2014, the first year the D&L Heritage Half Marathon had a walking division. Her motivation? Michele Stanton, author of Walk Your Way to Better Health and Walk Off Weight told her that she could. Linda started training in earnest with Michele in 2013, not sure that the finish line was in her reach. In the 8-week training program with Stanton, she lost 8.2 pounds and 9½ inches, cut total cholesterol by 37 points, and she lowered both systolic and diastolic blood pressure by 26 points each. She improved her walk time by 11:45 per mile that first year.

Then, when Kempf started training in 2014, she added a diet program and lost 15 pounds, 11 inches. Her healthier eating and weight loss improved her stamina as she trained. After completing the Half Marathon in 2014, she lost another 65 pounds.

In 2015, Linda moved to North Carolina and continued running and walking, but did not do any marathons since she was going through a difficult time. In 2016, she went back to training and signed up for another Half doing walk/run intervals. She finished with her daughter in about 2.5 hours, much faster than in 2014.

“Training for that Hershey run saved me from falling into a pit of depression. Crossing that finish line gave me hope!” Linda said.

Once Linda became a grandmother, she was determined to do five half marathons before turning 50 in April 2018! She ran the Hershey Half, D&L Heritage Half, Charlotte, Greenville and the OrthoClassic. Then she did a full marathon the week before her 50th birthday. Her story is an inspiration to every walker/runner who crosses the D&L Heritage Half Marathon finish line every year, no matter how long it takes.

On May 5, we kicked off the fifth anniversary of D&L’s award-winning community health and wellness program with St. Luke’s University Health Network. We launched the 165-mile “Get Your Tail on the Trail” challenge with activities, a trail walk, and the opening of Hugh Moore Bark, the Lehigh Valley’s newest dog park.
In Memory and Honor: Wouter di Nie

By Martha Capwell Fox
National Canal Museum Historian & Archives Coordinator

I first met Wouter di Nie in the dried-up chamber of Guard Lock 6 in North Catasauqua. That was sometime in the mid-1980s, and I quickly found out that Wouter knew more about the Lehigh Navigation than anyone I had ever met—at least until I was introduced to Lance Metz.

I never learned exactly why or when Wouter got interested in the anthracite canals, but I know that he went all in. He walked miles of Lehigh Navigation and Delaware and Hudson towpaths with David Barber, who published detailed guidebooks of both canals. Wouter helped Lance Metz mark the route of the Morris Canal through New Jersey. But his great passion—and legacy—was finding, talking with, and writing down the stories of more than four dozen people who had worked on, lived on, or had personal or family stories, photographs, and memories of the Lehigh Navigation.

Wouter’s day job was as a Senior Financial Analyst at Air Products and Chemicals in Trexlertown; a 1968 graduate of Lehigh University, he also held an MBA from the Wharton School of Business. The records of his canal research show he applied the same penetrating intellect, meticulous data recording, and attention to detail that his job demanded to his dedicated learning and recording the canal stories. Fortunately, by the mid-1990s, Wouter put everything he learned into a 160-page draft document that is a trove of practical information, anecdote, and potential preservation data about the Lehigh Navigation.

Wouter had the widest interlocking circles of friends of anyone I have ever known. Even after his progressive neurological disorder made it difficult for him to get around or communicate easily, he maintained his connections to his Lehigh roommates and fraternity brothers, his Air Products colleagues, his hiking companions, his history, railroad, and canal buddies, and brought us all together—70 or 80 people!—at his annual birthday dinners and spring lunches.

The last time I saw Wouter was to pick up photo albums, slides, notebooks and records from his Lehigh Canal work, which he wanted to make sure would be kept in the National Canal Museum Archives. I thought it would be the last of his regular, generous gifts to the Museum.

Sadly, Wouter passed away on April 18, 2018 at the age of 71. Not only had Wouter left behind a legacy of first-person histories and a love of anthracite canals, he also donated more than half a million dollars to the National Canal Museum. His gift is the largest gift from an individual that the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor has received.

His unexpected and generous gift has allowed us the flexibility and resources to undertake a strategic planning process that will inform the direction of the National Canal Museum for years to come.
On the Trail

2018 Eastern PA Greenways & Trail Summit

We hosted the 2018 Eastern PA Greenways & Trail Summit on October 5 and 6 at the ArtsQuest Center at SteelStacks. The Summit featured keynote speaker Laura Johnston, a conservationist, author, and hiker, as well as mobile workshops, a recreational bike/boat trip and an industrial history walk for 165 attendees.

Hugh Moore Park

Once the City of Easton’s re-construction on “Section A” of the Lehigh Canal was complete, our mule-drawn canal boat rides resumed in Hugh Moore Park on the Josiah White II. The public was invited to enjoy a canal boat ride and celebrate the reopening during “Canal Appreciation Month.”

Founders’ Day

We gathered the heroes, geniuses and leaders of the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor for an epic 30th Anniversary celebration at Hugh Moore Park in Easton.

Environmental Partnership Award

The Northeast Pennsylvania Environmental Partners awarded the 2018 Environmental Partnership Award to the Delaware & Lehigh National Heritage Corridor during its 28th Annual Dinner and Awards on Oct. 25 in Wilkes-Barre.

Pedestrian Bridge Dedication.

After 25 years of planning and construction, the long-awaited D&L Trail Mansion House Bridge at Jim Thorpe was dedicated on June 11.

D&L Heritage Half Marathon Walk/Run

Our largest fundraiser of the year was held on Nov. 4 along the trail from Slatington to Northampton, Pa. The annual race brought together staff, volunteers, and more than 800 participants—both runners and walkers. Together, we successfully raised more than $25,000 to support D&L’s Important programs and preserve the beauty and history of this trail for generations to come.

The LINK Trail Network

On Nov. 1, we unveiled The LINK Trail Network, a new network of interconnected multi-use trails offering residents and visitors the opportunity for year-round outdoor recreation, alternative transportation, and healthy living.

Rails-to-Trails Sojourn

Starting June 10, 300 cyclists from across the U.S. spent five days on the D&L Trail for the 2018 Rails to Trails Conservancy’s Pennsylvania Sojourn.

A 165-Mile Promise

Senator John Yudichak (D-Luzerne/Carbon counties) made a promise that if the Philadelphia Eagles won the Super Bowl, he would hike the 165-mile long D&L Trail, and he stood by his word.
Linking the Lehigh Valley: THE LINK Trail Network

Eric earned his first bike from Community Bike Works when he was just 10 years old. His father picked him up and let him ride behind him all the way home, so that he could safely find the way. Soon, he joined Saturday recreational rides on the D&L Trail. When he heard about THE LINK Trails Network, his eyes lit up.

“To be able to link from this location to the other Community Bike Works on the East side would be cool,” he says. “Places that you’d normally take a car, you could bike. I’d feel a lot safer to be on a trail without traffic.”

THE LINK is a vision for an interconnected network of safe, multi-use trails that will link Eric—and connect us all—to communities, nature, work, and culture from our cities to suburban and rural landscapes across 62 municipalities. The D&L and Wildland Conservancy alongside many partners, including two state and three regional agencies, are working to connect over 125 miles of existing and 100 miles of planned trail.

“The LINK is essential for the future of the Lehigh Valley,” said D&L Executive Director Elissa Garofalo at the launch in November. “Not only will it improve population health in coming years, growth of the trail network will increase quality of life, protect the environment, and generate economic growth. THE LINK will be a great way to get to work—and keep employees healthier, more productive.”

When it comes down to it, linking our communities with safe trails is an equity issue.

“Buying a car is expensive,” says Kim Schaffer, Executive Director of Community Bike Works. “To provide opportunities for low income families, we need to make sure our trails are welcoming to them. Community Bike Works has students who ride their bikes to after-school and summer jobs, and a better-defined network will provide more options.”

Though Eric enjoyed learning how to repair brakes and headsets, riding on the trails played an even bigger role in fostering his I-can-do-anything attitude and active lifestyle. He is excited to carry that with him to college. Go to delawareandlehigh.org to watch Eric’s interview, and more videos along the Corridor!
